

Intergenerational Communication at Work

Presenter: Renee Lee Rosenberg

These days we are seeing five generations working side by side, each with their own set of values, beliefs, work styles, needs, and wants. Understanding variations in communication styles, values, and experiences among the generations helps us to provide our clients with more effective advice and support.

In this informative and interactive presentation, Renee will describe the differences and similarities of the five generations and how we can help clients communicate more effectively within the generational mix in the job search and in the workplace. She will be sharing excerpts and stories from her recent speaking engagement at the "Ambition" business conference in the UK. Be prepared to learn, share, and have fun.
